Grabstein Johann Daniel Rambergs

Johann Daniel Ramberg (1732-1820) stand seit 1761 im Dienste dreier Generationen von Welfenherrschern als Kriegsrat, Kommerzrat, Hofrat und Geheimer Justizrat. Historische Bedeutung erlangte er jedoch als Architekt: Er entwarf den Leibniztempel, der heute im Georgengarten steht - und als Vater: sein Sohn Johann Heinrich Ramberg (1763-1840) war der bekannte Hofmaler Georg III. Als Dank für seine dynastische Treue erhielt er einen eindrucksvollen Grabstein auf dem Gartenfriedhof mit dem Hinweis auf seine Dienste unter drei Königen: Georg I., Georg II., Georg III.

Notes for JOHANN HEINRICH RAMBERG III:

<http://www.imagesofmusic.net/th/content/main/de/item952.htm> Italienische Schaukel / Leben in Rom, Künstler, Ramberg, Johann Heinrich; Herkunft des Bildes: Hannover; Datum: 1797; Beschreibung: Eine neue Art von Leichtigkeit und Lebensfreude entdeckten am Ende des 18. Jahrhunderts viele Künstler in Italien. Die Künstlerkolonie in Rom war bekannt und Goethe nicht der einzige, der sich von Italien inspirieren ließ. Johann Heinrich Ramberg (1763 - 1840) war bereits früh als Zeichner- und Malertalent entdeckt und gefördert worden. Mit Hilfe von König Georg III. konnte er in den 1780er und 1790er Jahren nach London und Italien reisen. Erinnerungen an diese Reisen finden sich immer wieder in späteren Werken. Die von Ramberg in Hannover in "erfundener und in Skicirter Manier" erstellte Zeichnung "Italienische Schaukel" bzw. "Leben in Rom", die wahrscheinlich als Kupferstichvorlage dienen sollte, zeigt rechts in einem Hauseingang mehrere Mädchen, die auf einem Brett schaukeln, dessen Bewegungsimpuls von einem Jungen rechts über ein Seil erzeugt wird. Vier der Frauen spielen auf Schellentrommeln zu diesem von der Schaukel erzeugten Grundtakt. Der alte Vater mit der Laute ist bereits eingeschlafen, Rhythmus und eine gewisse Freizügigkeit ist eingekehrt, so daß nicht nur die Mönche auf die Mädchen blicken, sondern auch ein junger Weinhändler den Frauen Wein anbietet.

Germany's intellectual elite displayed an enthusiasm for the American Revolution similar to that of France's philosophes. By 1784, Germany's most famous engraver, Daniel Chodowiecki of Berlin, as well as Johann Heinrich Ramberg of Hanover, had produced etchings focusing on the stacking of arms as the sign of surrender. Chodowiecki worked in Berlin where he was a member of the Royal Academy. Ramberg was studying with Benjamin West in London under the sponsorship of King George III when he executed his engraving in 1784. Ramberg's engraving is little known, but Chodowiecki's

On August 5 Haynau started deployment from the Ujszeged bridge-head, opposite to the Hungarian army at Szoreg. Simultaneously, Lieutenant General Georg von Ramberg' s 3rd Army Corps managed to cross the Tisza River at Torokkanizsa and now threatened the main Hungarian forces from the side. ..."

The second army corps commanded by Ramberg constituted the left wing, and its most advanced brigades (Götz and Jablonowsky) occupied positions not at Losoncz, as was previously boasted, but six miles further back near Balassa-Gyarmat, Vadkert and Waitzen. Schlick with the third corps were in the centre and had taken up positions in the vicinity of Hatvan and Aszod behind the Zagyva. Jellachich with the first corps made up the right wing which was extended from Szegled to the vicinity of Jasz-Bereny and was likewise behind the Zagyva, but a little further back.

During this time he also studied painting at the Academy in Prague with Franz Kadlik. In 1849 he relocated to Munich, and in 1860 went to Weimar where held a position as instructor at the newly founded Kunstschule (art school). In 1866 he returned to Munich as professor at the Academy. In contrast to the school of history painting that was inspired by Carl Theodor von Piloty, Ramberg's works take their primary inspiration from 17th century Dutch genre painting

Notes for AUGUST LUDWIG GEORG VIKTOR VON RAMBERG:

http://www.trafipax.hu/index.php?akt\_menu=84 Az újonnan elkészült UNGVÁR motoros 1941. november 8-án Odesszánál futott aknára, a KOLOZSVÁR-t pedig 1943. január 22-én Sulinánál érte torpedótalálat. Az eseményt August von Ramberg örökítette meg festményen a DTRT számára.

<http://www.mahart.hu/mahart/angol/a23.htm> "... Afterwards, the ships sailed away again but into a war of completely different kind. The Danube-seagoing ships as leased ones, from 1941, on the available list of the German MSTL Ost on the Black Sea, as long as the river ships on the base of the current orders of the Hungarian KSZV performed the transport of military reserves. The sea fleet suffered the first loss. The recently completed motorship Ungvar on 8th November, 1941 struck a mine at Odessa, the m/s KOLOZSVÁR was hit by a torpedo on 22nd January, 1943 at Sulina. This event had been painted by August von Ramberg for the DTRT. The river fleet got in critical situation in 1944, when the English airplanes had laid mines over the Danube section from Bratislava to Russe. The first Hungarian ship striking a mine was the steam tug GRÓF SZAPÁRY GYULA; following this the ships sunk and fell victims to air raids one after the other."

Ursprünglich auf der mit dem Durchbruch der Befestigungsanlage entstandenen Esplanade errichtet, musste der Tempel noch zweimal umziehen: Beim Bau des Waterlooplatzes 1832 wurde er an den Rand versetzt, 1935 erhielt er

28. [http://www ldc-ooe.burschenschaft.at/ldc\_1848.htm](http://www ldc-ooe.burschenschaft.at/ldc_1848.htm), Das Infanteriebataillon Schönhals wurde zum Sturm gegen die Barrikade vorgeworfen. Die Verteidiger ließen die Angreifer bis auf hundert Schritte herankommen, dann fetzten auf ein Zeichen des General Bem die fünf Geschütze der Barrikade mit Kartätschen unter die Angreifer und die Salve der Verteidiger fegte in die Reihen des Bataillons. Nun bedeckten Sterbende und Tote das Pflaster. Die Reste der Sturmkolonnen mußten einen eiligen Rückzug antreten. Nun ließ der an diesem Abschnitt die kaiserlichen Truppen kommandierende Feldmarschalleutnant Ramberg verstärkt Artillerie auffahren. Ein rollendes Dauerfeuer bestrich die ganze Jägerzeile. Wohl riß eine Kartätsche die deutsche Fahne von der Barrikade, sie wurde im feindlichen Feuer wieder aufgepflanzt. Die aus Pflastersteinen aufgetürmte Barrikade widerstand dem Geschützfeuer. Nun ließ FML Ramberg Infanterieabteilungen im Inneren der Häuser links und rechts der Jägerzeile vorgehen. Die Hauswände wurden durchbrochen und die Infanterie kämpfte sich Haus um Haus vorwärts. Im Inneren der Häuser tobte ein mörderischer Nahkampf, Gefangene wurden nicht gemacht. Es konnten jedoch nur einige wenige Häuser genommen werden, zwei mit rasendem seitlichen Abwehrfeuer bestrichene Quergassen hinderten das Vordringen. FML Ramberg befahl also einen neuerlichen Sturmangriff durch die Jägerzeile. Diesmal wurden die Reste der Schönhals-Infanterie durch Grenadierabteilungen unterstützt. Es gelang ihnen nicht, bis auf Bajonettkampfdistanz an die Barrikade zu gelangen. Wiederum brach der Angriff zusammen. Neue Kolonnen traten zu einem dritten Sturmangriff an, auch sie bluteten im Abwehrfeuer aus, das ihnen von der Barrikade und aus allen Fenstern und Dachluken entgegen schlug. Es war für beide Seiten ein blutiger Tag. Um 6 Uhr abends ließ FML Ramberg die Schönhals-Infanterie, die Deutschmeister-Grenadiere und die Mazzuchelli-Grenadiere zum letzten Sturm antreten. Wiederum setzten ihnen die Verteidiger Tod und Verderben speien.

September 1819 in Wien, gestorben am 5. Februar 1875 in München. Nach einer ersten Ausbildung im Zeichnen bei seinem Großonkel Johann Heinrich begann Ramberg 1840 ein Philosophiestudium an der Prager Universität. [after an initial education in drawing with his great Uncle Johann Heinrich, in 1840 Arthur began studying philosophy at the University of Prague.] Gleichzeitig studierte er Malerei an der dortigen Akademie bei Franz Kadlik. [at the same time he studied painting with franz kadlik in prague.] 1849 zog er nach München. 1860 ging er als Lehrer an die neu gegründete Kunstschule nach Weimar, 1866 übernahm er eine Professur an der Münchner Akademie. Im Gegensatz zur Historienmalerei der Schule um Carl Theodor von Piloty orientiert sich Rambergs Malerei am holländischen Genre des 17. Jahrhunderts.

133. <http://www.rights.org/lowband3.html>, In 1941, a Calgary couple, Victor and Dorothy Ramberg, used carbon monoxide to end the life of their 2-year-old son who had cancer. They freely confessed to the deed. They were charged with murder. They were acquitted by a jury that clearly did not consider mercy killing to be identical to murder -- even though the Criminal Code did not recognize such a distinction.
